

It is July 14 as I write this—France's Bastille day, their equivalent of our Fourth of July; and no other national holiday has quite so much significance for freemen around the world.

Our Fourth of July celebrates the overthrow of foreign tyranny, but Bastille day commemorates the fall of tyranny at home—when Frenchmen were oppressed by Frenchmen. Therefore the French holiday, like the signing of the Magna Carta by King John in England, represents a victory for little people over their so-called masters.

It was a world-wide ring today—this story of the Bastille of Paris. It was a prison-fortress built by Charles the 5th between 1370 and 1383, which in the days of the cleric-statesman Richelieu became a dungeon for whoever dared to criticize the government of France, its king, his ministers, the police, or the church.

Nobles, statesmen, writers vanished in the Bastille, cut off from family and friends, sometimes never to be heard from again.

The Bastille became a world-wide name for tyranny and terror. And when the French revolution broke out it was the first target that the people attacked. On July 14, 1789, the great prison was stormed and destroyed—and its site is now marked by a famous city square, the Place de Bastille.

Criticism . . . prison . . . death . . . this story of Bastille two centuries ago sounds like a foreign correspondent's dispatch of today.

Perhaps from Czechoslovakia, Hungary, or East Germany.

Bastille day will always be a holiday for freemen the world around—for fighting in the name of liberty there is no end.

Reds Remain in Jail Until Hearing

New York, July 14 —(AP)—A federal judge plans marathon court sessions Monday to complete hearings into bail furnished by 14 Communists by the Civil Rights Congress, chief bond source for the Red party.

Until the hearings are completed, 14 indicted Reds will remain free in a total of $13,000 bail—posted by the congress.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, bowing to a higher court, reinstated the Reds' bail yesterday and ordered their release after they spent two nights in jail.

But he told attorneys for the defendants that he planned to pursue the Monday hearings without further adjournment, going into night session if necessary.

Judge Ryan granted the weekend recess on a defense motion that it needed time to gather evidence against the revocation of the congress' bail.

Meanwhile, two trustees of the Civil Rights Congress bail fund remained in jail here on six months contempt-of-court sentences. Both are expected to seek their release in bail today.

The two Mystery Writer Dashell Hammett and W. Alpheus Hutton, were jailed by Judge Ryan last Monday when they refused to answer questions about contributors to the bail fund.

The $80,000 bail of these four had been posted by the congress, which is listed as subversive by the U. S. attorney general.

His inquiry into the bail jumping by the quartet led to revocation Wednesday of the bonds of the 14 other Reds. Judge Ryan then outlawed the congress as a future bondsman in the court, calling it "irresponsible."

But federal appeals Judge Learned Hand ruled on Thursday that Judge Ryan should not have revoked the bonds until the hearings on their validity were concluded.

Judge Hand ordered the 14 freed but legalities kept them in jail until yesterday.

On Thursday, Judge Hand also set bail for Hammett and Hutton at $10,000 pending appeal. It was not until last night that they were informed of today's attempt to post bail for the two.

A third bail fund trustee, Millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, is free in $10,000 bail pending appeal of a similar contempt sentence.

George Blake Charney, a 15th defendant, also spent Wednesday and Thursday night in jail. However, he is no longer involved in the hearings as his father yesterday supplied substitute $10,000 bail for the bond originally posted by the Civil Rights Congress.

Eyes of the halibut migrate to one side of the head as the fish reaches maturity. If the halibut lives in cold water the eyes and body color are on the right side. In warm water, the eyes travel over the head to the left side.

Homing Eels

Eels in America and Europe leave their streams and swim to the warm Atlantic waters north of the equator. There they produce their young and die. The young eels swim back to the same homes that their parents left.

Missouri and Kansas Hard Hit by Flood

By The Associated Press

A fairly pleasant weekend appeared in prospect for most of the nation—outside the flood-stricken areas of Kansas and Missouri. No rain was reported over the water-soaked areas today. Fair weather was forecast. Showers hit in New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma, northern Arkansas, Virginia and West Virginia.

It continued hot in the gulf states northward to Tennessee and Oklahoma and temperatures climbed in the Rocky mountain region. Readings were around normal levels in other parts of the country.

Kansas City, July 14 —(AP)—Here are some scenes from the most disastrous flood in Kansas City's history.

A woman stood on a high bluff overlooking the two-mile wide sweep of the rampaging Kansas river. Pointing with a gnarled finger, she said brokenly:

"My home was down there. I can't see it now. Water's over the roof."

Bystander murmured sympathetically. "When did you get out?" One asked.

"At 5 o'clock in the morning," the woman replied. Plucking at her dress, she added: "This is all I brought with me."

Beside the flood in the bottoms, others watched for livestock in the river and when they spied hogs swimming past they shouted:

"Here piggy. Here piggy, piggy."

A man leaped into the water with his clothes on and struggled to get a pig ashore. Other hogs were being driven up the hillside.

"Wanta buy a pig, mister?" A young man asked. "I'll sell it for $20. Lots of good pork chops there."

Would Strike Out Testimony of Two

Little Rock, July 14 —(AP)—Attorneys for the Arkansas Gazette have asked that the testimony of two striking newsmen be stricken from the record.

The two, Ruth Jacquemine and Jay Hightower testified yesterday that City Editor Sam Harris had personally opposed their joining local 209 of the CIO America Newspaper guild.

Gazette Attorney Tom M. Davis of Houston, Tex., asked that their testimony before a national labor relations board trial examiner be stricken. Davis contended that there was no showing that the alleged conversations between the strikers and Harris took place within the required period before the newspaper was served with the complaint.

NLRB regulations on unfair labor practices require that the alleged incident must occur within a period of six months before service of a complaint.

A decision on the Gazette motion was reserved pending further testimony by newsmen strikers. The NLRB attorneys said they hoped to establish a definite date in later testimony.

Miss Jacquemine, former city hall reporter, was the first striking newsmen employee to testify in the five-day old hearing.

Miss Jacquemine said she was asked by Harris what she expected "to get out of the guild." She said that he expressed surprise that she had joined the local and spoke in uncomplimentary terms of a CIO organizer.

Hightower, one-time courthouse reporter for the newspaper, said Harris told him he considered organization of the union "a stab in the back."

Neither he nor Miss Jacquemine could fix the exact date of the conversations, but both contended they took place prior to an NLRB election among newsmen employees on Sept. 2, 1949.

Stable Hand Is Accused of Rape

Hot Springs, July 14 —(AP)—A stable hand at the Belvedere Country club has been accused of raping a young mother here.

Chief of Police Dan A. Watkins said yesterday that the alleged victim, whom he did not name, identified David Allan Graham, 29, as her attacker in a police line up. Watkins said the federal bureau of investigation charged Graham with committing rape on government reservation.

The officer said the woman told him that Graham attacked her on Hot Springs mountain Tuesday night.

Robbers and Police Shoot Their Own Men

Buffalo, N.Y., July 14 —(AP)—One would-be bank robber shot another yesterday, and a policeman shot a man who was on the side of the law. Both wounded men survived.

Police said ex-convicts Theodore N. Sikora, 37, and Joseph Palame, 41, had just entered a branch bank of the Marine trust company, when Palame's gun went off accidentally. Sikora, wounded in the back, was considered in fair condition today.

Palame helped Sikora to his feet and the pair fled. They forced Norman Drum, 19, of Elmhorium, Pa., to drive them away in his station wagon. When they had gone a few blocks, Sikora took the wheel, despite his wound, and Palame held a gun at Drum's head.

As the vehicle sped northward out of the city, police forced it to the curb.

Police Inspector Martin J. Fein said he saw a glint from a pistol as Drum bent over in the back of the wagon, and the inspector thought Drum was the robbers' accomplice, ready to fire.

Fein shot Drum twice. He later learned that Drum had been trying to grab Palame's gun.

Drum, an electrical contractor, was reported in fair condition after four hours on an operating table.

Palame was charged with kidnapping, attempted first-degree robbery and possession of a loaded weapon.

Police said Sikora would face the same charges.

Russia Brands Jap Treaty as Aggression

Moscow, July 14 —(AP)—Moscow newspapers today denounced the proposed American draft of a Japanese peace treaty as "an aggressive setup directed against the national liberation movements in south and southeast Asia."

Philippines Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo said yesterday the draft "filled the Philippine people with disillusionment and dismay."

Investigative government newspaper said the opinion of Communist has been illustrated by their official notes to Moscow concerning this "illegally worked out project."

It said India's opposition had been explained by the second all-India congress of peace partisans which condemned it in advance.

The paper said public figures and the press in other Asian countries have categorically come out against the proposed treaty.

"The sharply negative" attitude of the Asian people, it said, is because these people suffered most of all from Japanese aggression.

Police Probe Theft of Money

City officers are investigating the theft of a $15 check and $6 in cash which was reported by Retha Taylor as missing from a coffee table in her home at 411 N. Walnut. The incident occurred yesterday.

Alert Janitor Helps Find Equipment

Fayetteville, July 14 — The mysterious disappearance of electrical equipment from the University of Arkansas fine arts center apparently has been solved—thanks to an alert janitor.

An unidentified Siloam Springs man is being held here for questioning in the theft.

He was arrested at Siloam Springs yesterday after some equipment similar to the missing items was found in the home of his mother, Striffr Bruce Crider of Washington county. Crider said the man admitted taking the equipment, including two movie projectors.

Officers got their first break in the case from an unidentified janitor at the veterans administration hospital here.

A man representing himself as a repairman removed a movie projector from the hospital. The janitor became suspicious, took down the license number of the car the visitor was driving, and reported the incident to Crider.

Crider then asked Benton County Sheriff John Black to check on the man. The search of the home and the man's arrest followed.

No charges have been filed.

Insists Crime Is a Woman's Problem, Suggests Laws to Prevent Hasty Marriages

New York, —(AP)—"Crime is a woman's problem," says Magistrate Anna Kross.

And 18 years on the bench have convinced her that only women can do anything permanent about reducing the crime rate in the United States.

"The men can't do it," she said flatly. "They have proved that."

"Today the womanpower of America should be saddled to clean up the country—physically an morally. But they can't do it by doing what men have been doing for so long—merely paying lip service to democracy."

How can the ordinary housewife do anything about stopping crime?

"Well, she can't check it by merely seeing that her own children get home on time," she said. "She has to be willing to do something about the kids on the other side of the railroad tracks. You can't get rid of smallpox just by inoculating the people who live on the hill."

The blunt-spoken little jurist—a mother herself—believes the whole approach to the problem of wiping out crime has been wrong. She believes the basic cure lies in creating happy families, and feels if a family is sick the individuals in it will be sick, too.

"Courts, prisons and police—what do they do but give society a sense of security?" she said. "They are only pat of a stait-jacket at best."

"There isn't a prison in our country that doesn't become a post-graduate school for criminals. What juvenile court judge in this country is really trained for the job? None. He got that job only because he knew the right person."

10,000 U.S. Men Missing, Fate Unknown

Washington, July 14 —(AP)—Defense officials declined to speculate today on the fate of more than 10,000 American fighting men missing in Korea.

Some are prisoners of the Communists. Some undoubtedly are dead. But defense officials are not making any estimates on how many were in each group.

In propaganda broadcasts and party newspapers the Reds have given the names of about 2,000 Americans as prisoners. But U. S. officials have been unable to make any confirmations.

The Reds have flouted international rules on exchanging information on prisoners of war as set forth in the Geneva convention. They have refused to furnish the International Red Cross with names of prisoners or to permit Red Cross representatives to visit prison camps.

According to the latest casualty summary, only 158 Americans are known to be prisoners of the Communists.

In addition to the more than 10,000 still missing in action, another 1,300 once missing have been found.

In World War II, the army—including the air force—had a total of 175,000 missing. Nearly 80 per cent, about 138,000, finally returned. Of the 175,000 missing, 12,000 were prisoners. About 12,000 prisoners died in enemy hands, with 114,000 being freed.

Stricken Families Extend Thanks to the Public

The generosity of the citizens of Hempstead County has enabled two disaster stricken families to start building their homes again.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Campbell, whose home was destroyed by fire June 13, and Albert Brooks, whose wife perished in the blaze, have received many donations from all over this section.

They have practically all essential articles necessary to start housekeeping, having received everything from cooking utensils to furniture and cash. All these donations were given in answer to an appeal by the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

Today the Campbells and Brooks families expressed their thanks to the people of Hempstead for the many contributions.

Narrows Dedication July 21, to Feature Beauty, Brains Plus Daring and Speed

Nashville, Ark. (Special)—Daring and brains have their day Saturday July 21, when the Narrows Dam is dedicated but speed and daring take over Sunday, July 22.

For on Sunday the speedsters and daredevils who send whirling motors and tear-shaped bobs bouncing along the water top will put on the show. Big names in motor boat racing will be on hand, according to Dan Furell of Nashville who is chairman of the committee in charge.

"Tex Flagg is going to be here, and he is the national champion of the 25 horsepower class," Dan says. Flagg is from Denison, Texas.

"Pop" Willis, the official starter for the Southwest Motorboat Association in Texas, will serve in that capacity for the races at Narrows Sunday. He is the same official who works the Batesville Water Carnival annually.

Speeds up to 60 MPH probably will be recorded Sunday when the Stock Utility Sanctioned races are held in the afternoon. Racers are expected from motorboat clubs in Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana. Any points they pick up as a Narrows winner Sunday will go towards their yearly championship total.

The water show Sunday will start at 10:30 a. m. with local boatmen and amateurs competing. The second show will include boats with 22 horsepower or less. The third will be a free-for-all race from the dam to Daisy at the north end of the lake. While the free-for-all is taking place, a slow boat race will be held at the dam.

Racers have been invited from El Dorado, Little Rock, Hot Springs, Texarkana, Shreveport, Dallas, Denison and Sherman.

The formal dedication will take place Saturday. The Washington delegation will be represented by Senators William Fulbright and John McClellan and Representatives Tackett, Gathings, Harris and Norrell. The Corps of Engineers will be represented by General Lewis Pick, Brig. Gen. Peter Peringa, head of the Vicksburg district Governor Sidney McMath will accept the lake for Arkansas.

Meanwhile entries come steadily in for the Princess SWAIA contest. Fifteen young ladies representing Southwest Arkansas towns are already selected. They will compete in the beauty contest early Saturday afternoon. The contest costume will be Indian in motif but with the length of a bathing suit. A water parade will precede the judging contest.

Officials are preparing to handle 15,000 visitors who are being cautioned to bring lunches because of limited accommodations at the lake.

Talks Bogged as Allies Press Enemy Troops

U. P. Staff Correspondent

8th Army Headquarters, Korea, July 14 —(UP)—United Nations defenses all along the Korean front today to keep up pressure on the more than 400,000 Communist troops looming as an ominous threat behind the cease-fire talks.

On the central front, troops who slugged forward four miles toward Kumsong, the big Red communications and supply base, rested briefly after their two-day offensive while Allied warplanes ripped up the Communist lines.

The 8th Army said there were now from 200,000 to 250,000 Communist troops opposed to U. N. forces on the west-central front.

Earlier front reports said that at least 400,000 Reds were massed in a build-up area behind the Communist front line troops and front commanders warned of a Communist double cross of the cease-fire negotiations went wrong.

There were reports that the Reds were digging in around Kaesong, the cease-fire conference site. UN patrols in that zone have bumped into Red units on every probing mission and the Reds were believed using the conference immunity provisions to strengthen defense of their remaining holding in South Korea.

The 8th Army also said that enemy material captured last week was "markedly less" than in previous weeks, indicating that the Reds were becoming unusually careful in preserving their stores even while withdrawing.

Action late yesterday was described as "relatively quiet." That included a bitter seven-hour battle northeast of Iwonchon, below Kumsong to the east, and a six-hour scrap a few miles farther north. Red forces broke off the fight by withdrawing before the stubbornly advancing Allies.

New Armory Is Formally Dedicated

McAllister of Conway, supervisor of the building program and a member of the Governor's military staff, who outlined the history of the building and introduced guests.

Brig. Gen. John B. Morris, state adjutant general, Little Rock, made the formal dedication in the principal address. He presented the keys of the building to Captain John A. Rust, commander of Company A, 153rd Infantry and appointed him custodian.

Mayor Lyle Brown accepted the building in behalf of the city and Chamber of Commerce president, Mike Kelly, welcomed distinguished guests.

WILD WEST
CHARITY STANDISH
BY CHARLES JUDAH
COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: After going to New Mexico to forget his fever, Charity Standish prepared to leave to return to Douglas Kent, the gambler who was her heart. Doug lost all his money at the Pecos River and was $5000 in debt to Angel, one of the partners, who says that he must be her "peon" until the debt is repaid. They still remain in the desert, Charity thought, to find out just what happened. So she went into the Pecos River to see Angel, who is a dark beauty who drove her crazy.

ANGEL looked up the smile with which she had regarded Charity Standish faded. She glanced toward the dice table where Duke Rogers presided. The tall intruder repeated the question "Was Doug drinking?"

Angel shrugged. "Men come here to drink."

"Doug doesn't, it he's playing." The man turned toward Charity scrutinizing her out of eyes half amused half puzzled. She started back, indignant that anyone should be so impertinent as to eavesdrop on a conversation between ladies.

He was tall and lean. He held himself, as Angel did, with easy grace, and like Angel's skin was warm olive but unlike Angel his eyes were gray and his hair sand colored. His mouth was as big as hers was small, as generous as hers was cruel.

"I don't know how you fit in this picture, man," he said to Charity, "but I doubt if you belong at all. I'd go back to the Aztec if I were you."

Under other circumstances Charity might have been flattered at being classified with the Aztec's fashionable clientele. But she was in no mood for flattery.

"I can take care of myself, thank you," she snapped.

He grinned amiably. "I doubt it."

All her bitter disappointment in Douglas Kent, all the impossent, pent up rage aroused by Angel found a target in this stranger who first eavesdropped and then presumed to give advice. Her voice was shrill, unlike the sort of voice that before tonight she had, smugly associated with women such as Angel.

"Get out and tend to your own business."

"I guess it's a good idea," he replied, his grin unruffled.

When he was gone Angel's mood had changed.

"He is right, you do not belong here," she said to Charity.

"I came about Douglas Kent." "Yes, and how that you know how it is with him, it would be better for you to go away."

Charity knew that this was true. She should flee San Lorenzo, the West. But first there was something to be done. It was utterly mad. She was a fool; but there was some force within her that compelled her, as it had compelled her Puritan ancestors, to oppose her enemies to the bitter end, though she must crucify herself in so doing. She calculated rapidly. With care she could live on half her income, and she might get a position teaching school or as assistant librarian; or she might even marry Ed Smith, though that did seem a trifle unscrupulous.

"I'll pay you your $5,000," she said.

ANGEL made no attempt to hide her scorn. "You are stupid, or you believe I am. You would pay me $5,000, you say, though I would take a long time. If I agree? If you paid me, I would only have back my money. It would be the end. With Douglas Kent it will never be the end. I will see to that. There will always be a little more owing; it is the way with peons. He must work for me. He will make many times $5,000. And some day, if he pleases to your husband, as you have no real affection for either one. That will save you the scandal of divorce and secure to your child the blessing of a father and the security of a home. Don't break your husband's heart by turning his child away from him. You owe him as least that much atonement for the sin you have committed against him."

You say you don't love either man, so there is no emotional choice between them. Your husband has this much advantage over his rival—that you know him to be good and kind and a good provider.

Dear Mis Dix: For four years I have been in love with a man three years older than I. We have gone together on and off during this time. We have a quarrel, then he wants to come back to me and I don't want him, or I want to make up and he doesn't.

We both have gone with other people and he has even gone so far as to become engaged but he always ends up back with me. My mother doesn't like him because he can't keep a steady job. I've tried to forget him but find it impossible.

Answer: Get off the merry-go-round. Pauline, and settle down. There's no future for you with this boy, and you know it. Do you want a married life of continual bickerings with a man who doesn't love you enough to make an attempt to support you?

There is no such thin gas "not forgetting." It may not be easy, but it can be done, and I'd advise you to do it.

Dear Mis Dix: I am in love with a girl who has a wonderful personality, good looks, and fine taste in clothes. What has me puzzled is the fact that she claims she likes me, yet everywhere we go she brings her girl friend along. I like this girl so much I enjoy spending money on her, but having the girl's friend along all the time is emptying my pockets.

I introduced her friend to some of my pals but no one seems to suit her. What can I do to get a date alone with my girl?

Answer: As a drastic measure, you could try dating the friend and leaving your girl home some evening. The shock might jolt her into tossing her chaperone into the discard.

Your girl is probably still a little afraid of men and is taking her companion along as protection. Why not have a heart-to-heart talk with her about the situation; assure her of your trustworthiness, with you alone, or in double dates, but no more "third party" affairs.
